

Figure 8: Fecundity in the different replicates at generation 88. We estimated the average fecundity per fly, by counting the number of eggs laid by 29-40 female at 5 successive days (starting with 5 day old flies). One generation of density control was performed at generation 88. Significance was computed with t-tests.